

KAMAKURA

By: Sydney and Fia

A wide-angle photograph of a beach at sunset. The sky is a gradient of orange, yellow, and blue. The ocean has gentle waves with white foam. A few people are visible in the distance. A large white square is centered over the image, containing the word "EDUCATION" in a black, hand-drawn font.

EDUCATION

WASEDA INTERVIEWS

What kinds of trash are there in the seashore of kamakura?

- Cans, plastic bottles, electronics, food waste, clothes, plastic bags, food wrappers, ropes

How can education improve the environmental conditions in Kamakura?

- Information seminars for impacts within community, mandatory education, better waste disposal, school program, combini initiatives, trash field trip

If you had 50,000 yen to help solve the problem what would you spend it on?

- School programs, education programs, posters, volunteer groups

RESULTS OF OBSERVATION

Trash we saw: cigarettes, food trays, unidentifiable plastic bits, bottle caps, parts of ships, containers,

RESULTS OF INTERVIEW

Who do you think is responsible for the trash?

- Tourists

How can we solve the problems of trash?

- More trash bins on the beach, education programs, community outreach (convenience stores, posters)

THOUGHTS

- Regardless of who is responsible for the trash, it is still a huge problem for the environment and people who live in Kamakura
- Can be solved with a few solutions
- Education is important, but action is also important

PERMACULTURE

- The problem could be solved by integrating permaculture into design concepts around Kamakura.
- In urban cities, building rooftops have gardens and greenhouses.
- In Kamakura, building eco-friendly huts or shacks near the beach so that they complement the surrounding landscape.

FUTURE TASK

How can we use education to help the environment?

- Create awareness in all areas of life (school, community, work)
- Incentives to help keep the environment clean

EDUCATION -> ACTION

A wide-angle photograph of a beach at sunset. The sky is a gradient of orange, yellow, and blue. The ocean is calm with small waves. A few people are visible in the distance. A large white rectangle is centered over the image, containing the text "EDUCATE NOW, ENJOY FOREVER" in a black, handwritten-style font.

"EDUCATE NOW,
ENJOY FOREVER"

THANK YOU FOR LISTENING

